BIG SMOKER TO BE HELD NEXT WEEK

M's Will be Presented by Sir Arthur Currie

BOXING BOUTS

McGill Grads to Speak on College Spirit

Presentation of M's Boxing Bouts, talks from prominent grads, College songs, and free smokes are to form part of the programme of the huge athletic smoker, to be staged at the Union next Tuesday, Nov. 27 at 8.15 o'clock. Arrangements for the smoker are now complete, after considerable time spent on them by the members of the Union House Committee who are looking after the entertainment. The affair has long been contemplated by the members of the committee, who regard smokers as the best possible means of bringing the students together.

Who are to compete in the boxing bouts has not yet been decided but it is stated on good authority that two of the best known boxers of the University will be on hand to perform. A good fight is promised.

One of the main purposes of the smoker, however, is to bring before the eyes of the student body, the winners of the coveted "M." M's have been won by members of this year's football squad and by members of the tennis team. The awards will be presented by Sir Arthur Currie, who has very kindly consented to be present.

Music for the evening will be provided by one of McGill's dance orchestras de luxe, and Willard Crocker's new McGill song will be formally introduced by Crocker himself. "Monty" Montgomery, one of McGill's most popular grads, and captain of the 1912 championship McGill Football team has consented to address the gathering on College Spirit. Walter Molsen and George MacDonald will also speak on this pertinent topic.

Free smokes aplenty will be provided to all, and the cafeteria will be open at the conclusion of the smoker.

SENIOR RUGBYISTS TO BE BANQUETTED

Med. Undergrads Invite Squad to Feast

That an aftermath of feasting will feature the past season activities of the senior rugby squad was learned yesterday afternoon during the course of a meeting of the rugby men in the Union.

"Doug" McGregor, the chairman, announced that the team had received an invitation from the undergraduates in Medicine to attend their banquet to be held some time next week. On asking the opinion of the players in the matter a practically unanimous vote in favour of accepting was made.

Saturday, December first, is the day set for the official banquet for the rugby squad, was the message of Over who further advanced the information that the Athletic Board had voted one hundred dollars towards defraying expenses. The event will not be formal, said the speaker to allay the fears of some present, and further, more there will be no long-winded post prandial deliberations.

The intermediate and junior rugby men are included in the list of eligibles for this banquet, and the choice of a banquet place is withheld, pending an accurate survey of those intending to be present.

STUDENT INJURED IN CHEMICAL EXPLOSION

An explosion of chemicals while he was conducting research work in the Chemistry Building, severely burned A. D. McCallum, a graduate student, and son of Dr. A. B. McCallum, professor of biochemistry. The cause of the accident, which occurred in a yet unknown.

An emergency call brought two ambulances to the scene of the explosion and the fumes of the chemicals were noticeable at a considerable distance from the building.

The patient was resting more comfortably yesterday, it was reported at his home in Westmount.

R.V.C. MUSIC CLUB LEARN OF DE BUSSY

Life and Works of Famous Composer Discussed

An interesting paper on the life and works of De Bussy was given by Miss Mullen, R. V. C. '27 at the meeting of the R. V. C. Music Club held yesterday afternoon. The constitution of the society was read to the meeting and all its provisions explained. The main purpose of the Club is the promotion of the appreciation of good music. It was also decided that a fee of twenty-five cents be collected from each member to meet expenses incurred by the society.

On completion of the business part of the programme, Miss Mullen read her paper on De Bussy, the famous composer.

De Bussy was born at St. Germain and received his first lessons from a woman who was a pupil of Chopin. His first work of distinction was done in Italy. De Bussy took the simplest means to express his ideas, every note was considered essential. He had a delicate sense of proportion, hence in his works is found no crushing chords and tremendous climaxes, and because of his intense appreciation of literature he was able to interpret, to the fullest, human emotions and feelings.

As illustrations of the works of De Bussy, Miss Betty Cameron gave a skillful and charming presentation of "Requiem," "Dans l'Eau," "The Second Arabesque," and "Di Gradus ad Parnassum," were rendered by Miss Fielders.

At the close of the meeting a vote of thanks was tendered Miss Muller for her interesting sketch and to those taking part in it. Miss Hurtball was thanked for attending the meeting and responded by a few remarks. (Continued on page 3)

"JAZZ TEA" VERY WELL PATRONIZED

Cloutier's Orchestra Provided the Music

The harmonious strains of Cloutier's Orchestra drew a large crowd to the Union Cafeteria yesterday afternoon, and one of the most successful "Jazz Teas" of the season was held.

The orchestra was extremely generous, playing from a quarter to five till well towards six o'clock. "Runnin' Wild" seemed to be the favourite piece played, according to the applause which greeted it from the enthusiastic audience.

The Cafeteria was filled to overflowing during the whole hour, the seats being snapped up as soon as they were vacated. In addition, those who had partaken of their "five o'clock" and had given up their seats in favour of others, congregated outside the cafeteria doors, in order that they might not miss any of the music. So provided, was the front lobby of the Union, that several were heard to inquire as to whether an accident had occurred.

SURPRISES GALORE FOR JUNIOR PROM.

Formal Dance at Union To-night

MANY TO ATTEND

Photograph to be Taken for Annual

Working into the small hours of this morning, the Junior Prom. Committee just about completed the decorations for to-night's formal dance. With the few additional arrangements that are to be made during the course of the day, everything will be complete for what promises to be one of the most successful dances ever held at McGill.

The committee have not spared themselves in the least and together with many other members of the Junior years, have given their time unstintingly in their efforts to make the dance every bit a success.

This year, several unique features are being introduced and many surprises await the subscribers. The decorations that have been carried out in the ball room are particularly beautiful, several architectural students have taken a big hand in the work and some very pleasing effects have resulted. The lounge room has also been tastefully arranged and the draperies and colour scheme are all that could be desired.

Supper will be served in two sittings and the catering which is being looked after by the management of the Union Cafeteria, will be something out of the ordinary.

The McGill Dance Orchestra consisting of seven pieces will be in attendance. Past performances of these musicians would make anything that could be said here about them superfluous; and under Cloutier it is assured that the music will be of the finest.

During the course of the evening a flashlight picture will be taken for reproduction in the Annual. The dance is timed to commence at 8.30 p.m.

TORONTO HONOURS McGILL PRINCIPAL

Together With Many Others
Receives L.L.D. Degree

At a special convocation held in Castle Memorial Hall, McMaster University, Toronto, at the first of the week, Principal Sir Arthur Currie was the Chancellor. A number of other eminent men were also honoured.

Sir Arthur, in an address, expressed the goodwill and wishes of McGill University. He stated that he thought that too much is expected of the university to-day. It was expected to solve all questions, yet many of these were moral, not educational. He could see no cure for the world's ills till principle reigned supreme among men and nations. Progressive education was essential. Romance and poetry should never be allowed to cease. The test of a university was not alone how well it taught certain things, but its capacity for developing character, and for increasing the capacity for service.

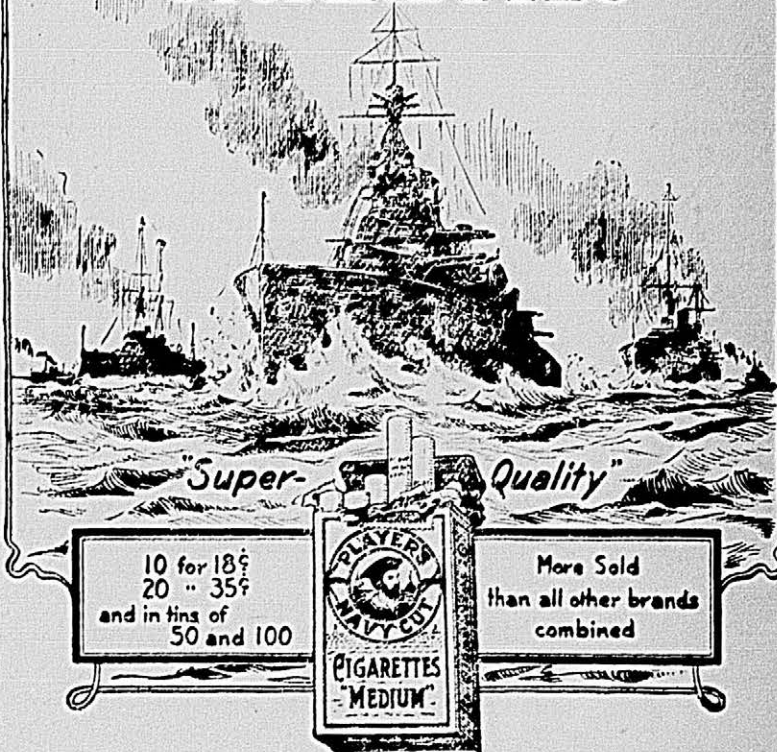

The other recipients of the Doctor of Laws degree were: Right Hon. W. R. Fielding, Acting Premier and Minister of Finance for the Dominion; Wallace W. Charters, Director of European Research, Carnegie Institute of Technology; W. H. P. Faunce, President of Brown University; Maurice Hutton, Principal, University College; Cecil C. Jones, Chancellor, Queen's University; and John Howard Shakespeare, Secretary Baptist Union in Great Britain (in absentia).

ANNUAL PHOTOGRAPHS TO BE IN BY TUESDAY

The work on the 1925 annual is being rapidly gone ahead with and everything points to its being one of the best year books produced yet.

Some trouble is being met with in having the men of Junior years get their pictures in on time and those who have not arranged for their photographs are requested to see that they are turned in not later than Tuesday. After Tuesday the special rate of $1.50 will be raised to $2.00, so it will be of advantage to have the matter attended to at once.

MONTREAL FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1927.

THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING ERNEST

College students, as a class, are often accused of a lack of seriousness. They take their responsibilities too lightly, it is said, and fail to realize the earnestness of the struggle that awaits them out in the cold hard world. Because university undergraduates succeed in having a very good time, and manage to enliven their studies with much laughter, athletics and dancing, and to crowd a good deal of real living into what is, after all, only a preparation for life, they are branded by too many superficial observers as a rather pleasure-loving set of genial irresponsibles who, it seems, are lacking in the great quality of earnestness.

It would not be difficult to present a long and very dull defense against this charge of frivolity. We could show—very seriously and in all earnestness—that this unfortunate impression of what fiction-writers are pleased to term "the college set" owes its being to the amusing caricature of campus life that makes the "college comics" such pleasant reading. We could write earnestly and at great length in vindication of the college student, citing many examples of heroic toilers through the night, studying to make the most of a college education for which they are paying out of the fruits of their own serious and earnest labour. We could—but perhaps it would be of more value if we answer those, who, with uplifted palm and long demeanour, urge us to "be earnest, young man, be earnest," somewhat in this manner:

"Sir, your advice is undoubtedly well-meant, and, indeed it is excellent counsel. But its application, as we think you will admit upon a moment's reflection is very limited. You say, 'Be earnest,' but our name, unfortunately is not Ernest. To the excellent fellows who bear this cognomen your advice could not be improved; for to them, instead of being a tame exhortation to a leaden-eyed gravity, it is a clarion call to individualism, an exhortation to self-reliance, which to them means: Be yourself. How much more fitting is it to urge upon young men to be themselves than to thunder at them an exhortation to assume, what even you will admit, is unbecoming seriousness. You will see, then, that what is rather useless and platitudinous advice to Tom, Dick, and Harry, and Myrtle, becomes to Ernest a great and inspirational cry of: Be yourself."

If any advice is needed by college students to-day, it is above all this call to be oneself. Standardization is beginning to infect the land like a plague. We dress the same way, we read the same newspapers, we talk about the same things in the same manner, and are dictated to by the same foibles of fashions at the same seasons. We even come to think the same things in the same way, until one is sickened with the word "same." This state of affairs should certainly not be allowed to exist. Each one of us has an individual personality which should be as recognizable as our face. Let us not hide it under the cloak of standardization and custom. We do not want to wear this coat because it happens for the moment to be the style, and to get that because the next fellow has one; and above all let us try to rid ourselves of that most subtle form of insincerity, the habit of doing things just because—"well they're done, you know." Cultivate an individual personality, and then show it. Develop a few harmless eccentricities; it will be a pleasant relief from the present colourless sameness from which so many seem afraid to depart. Above all be yourself, but do not forget that you must first make yourself something worth being. And if your name is Ernest remember it is better to be Ernest than earnest.

CONDENSED COMMENT

After a great deal of labour, especially during the past week, the members of the Junior Prom. committee have practically completed all arrangements for to-night's big event. The dance is one of the outstanding formal affairs of the university year and those who have watched the developments during the last few days can prophesy, with a clear conscience and a firm belief, that success, pure and unadulterated, will crown the efforts of the Junior Year.

Last evening an indoor baseball league game was cancelled, owing to the fact that one team failed to appear. At least that is the information which the Daily has received. If leagues of this type are to be successful, it is essential for both aggregations to appear without fail and it should be the duty of the class athletic representatives to see that the arrangements do not miscarry.

Bishop M. F. Fallon, of London, Ontario, is speaking at seven o'clock this evening at Strathcona Hall. His Lordship will talk on "The Claim of the Catholic Church on the Intellectual Allegiance" and as the speaker has acquired a wide reputation as a man, who does not fear to say what he believes, there should be a large audience to greet him. Such an event is worthy of the support of those in the undergraduate body and on the professoriate who are truly interested in things worth while. The meeting is being held under the auspices of the Catholic Truth Society and the Student Christian Association and is open to all who care to attend.

Sandy: "Would you marry a Chinaman?"
A bird in the hand is bad table manners.

She: "Oh dear! This is so sudden. But I always supposed you merely looked like one."
McNell: "Why is a crow?"
Butts: "Caws."

WATER POLO TEAMS PLAY GOOD GAMES

McGill Seniors Defeated
M.A.A.A. 7-3

VERNOT STARRED

Intermediates Lost Hard
Fought Game

The Rubenstein Bath was the scene of two fast games of water polo last night when the McGill Seniors triumphed over the M. A. A. A. team and the M. A. A. A. Reds defeated the McGill Intermediates. Both games were well played, the forwards combination play being excellent and the covering by the defense men being very good.

In the Senior game M. A. A. A. opened the scoring in the first minute of play. McConnell secured the ball directly after the whistle blew and carried it down to McGill's goal. McGill were right on the job however and Jim Ross soon scored their first point on a pretty effort. Another point followed shortly after for McGill when Vernet shot the ball in from centre.

In the second period McGill again had the scoring advantage tallying three times. At the end of the half the score stood 5 to 1 in McGill's favour.

M. A. A. A. lived up in the third period and added two more goals to their score. Ritchie and McConnell each having one to their credit. McGill did not score in this period.

Some very fast play was witnessed in the final period in spite of the fast pace that had been kept up throughout. McGill notched two more goals and were successful in blanking their opponents. The final score stood 7-3 for McGill.

Vernet and Ross played a stellar game for McGill while McConnell and Ritchie starred for M. A. A. A. The game was very clean M. A. A. A. receiving the only penalty.

The line up was as follows:—

INTERMEDIATE GAME

The M. A. A. A. Reds defeated the McGill Intermediates by a score of 1 to nothing. Earle notched the only point in the game. The play was fast and very close throughout. Although only one point was registered many brilliant stops were made by the goal tenders on each side. A number of penalties were handed out to both teams, nevertheless it was quite clean enough to be an enjoyable game to watch.

This game was played under a protest by McGill Earle of M. A. A. A. having been penalized in a former game and in consequence should have been kept off last night's line up. The line up was as follows:—

SPLENDID SPIRIT

Mr. MacTier Present to Donate Beautiful Trophy

The McGill English Rugby Club terminated the season by a very impressive and spirit-stirring banquet which was given at the Union last night. Mr. MacTier, the donor of the cup which is by the way, the most magnificent and majestic of any cup ever given away in Canada, was there to present same to the McGill team. Besides the members of the McGill and Montreal English Rugby Clubs there were present also Prof. T. H. Matthews and E. C. Amaron, the president of Students Council.

Those who were fortunate in being there will attest to the fact that the dinner was "par excellence" and had measured up in every way to expectations. No less than eight courses were served and to say the least they were served to men who did justice to the meal and incidentally to themselves.

The MacTier Cup which is emblematic of the English Rugby championship of Eastern Canada was presented to the McGill Club in virtue of the fact that they had won the Championship last Saturday.

Jack Cleland, Manager of the McGill English Rugby Club instituted ceremonies by calling on the captains and representatives of both teams. Marpole the captain of the McGill Club paid tribute to the Montreal team for their stubborn and effective resistance in the games that were played with them this season. Mr. Hyde of the Montreal Team in turn paid his compliments to McGill team which had decisively vanquished them last Saturday. If McGill had played similarly the week previous, she would no doubt have conquered the strong Toronto Varsity team who were unable to play off with Montreal. Mr. Gunn also of the Montreal team further lauded the splendid spirit and friendship of McGill Club. He felt that there was no cause in the world why English Rugby should not be developed—that in years to come such worthy opponents as Oxford and Cambridge will invite the Canadian teams to play with them. McDermott who followed Gunn accepted congratulations for McGill and extended his thanks to Montreal. Incidentally he told the men in connection with the occasion, that wherever we find powder we find "Gun."

Jack Cleland, who was master of ceremonies, then rose and stated that it was necessary to fight hard to retain the cup here and stiff competition was not lacking. This Saturday both the Montreal and McGill teams are going to Halifax to play with Halifax Wanderers and Dalhousie. The winners of these games will play off Monday and Cleland hoped it would be McGill and Montreal again. This game will have no effect whatsoever on the cup.

Mr. MacTier congratulated both teams for their excellent sportsmanship which characterized the game so much to-day in marked contrast to what it had been in the past. He pointed out how the American and Canadian Rugby is really nothing but an evolution of English Rugby. He presented the splendid cup to the McGill team and hoped that McGill would have a hard time holding it. Prof. L. H. Matthews spoke last but what he said was indeed worth while. He thought it would be feasible as well as interesting if English Rugby remained in its pioneer stage in Canada, because it was amusing to struggle. He showed the advantage of English Rugby over American in that the former no signals are needed and men can be picked at a few minutes without any preliminary organization. All that was necessary was the spirit and dash. He really hope that English Rugby would continue to develop and go ahead.

The banquet was fittingly concluded by singing Auld Lang Syne.

STUDENT TOTALLY DEAF HAS A HIGH COLLEGE STANDING

John A. Farwell '27 of Boulder, Colo., though totally deaf, is carrying 17 hours work in architectural engineering. He takes all the work required in the curriculum with the exception of all "B" and "A" for the caption of military training. His first six weeks.

Farwell is 18 years old, and became deaf when he was in the first grade. He attended the Colorado School for Deaf for one year and then spent five years in a prep school in Massachusetts. He left the institution before finishing the complete Boulder high school in 1922 with an average of 86.

POOL TOURNAMENT DRAW ANNOUNCED

Cues Will be Awarded to Winners

The draw for the billiard and pool games will be played within the next few days. Billiard games will be played on tables 1 and 2 at hours suitable to the contestants, but all games must be finished within the specified time. Contestants will choose their own markers. The billiard games will be two hundred points from scratch. After due consideration, it was decided not to run the competition on the handicap system this year. Cues will be awarded to the winners.

Several well known faces will be seen in the competition and some displays of really good billiards may be expected. E. L. Boulton who was last year champion of the University in the second term competition has entered for this year's contest in addition to Steele and Robertson, both of who played exceedingly well last year. Robertson has also entered the pool competition. The names J. M. Packham and E. C. Leach, president and secretary of the Union respectively, also appear on the list.

A list of the draws for the first round follow.

ICE FORMATION ON WATERWAYS

Physical Society Will Discuss Its Prevention

"Ice Formation and Its Prevention" will be the subject of an address by Dr. H. T. Barnes before the Physical Society today.

Through its bearing upon winter navigation and trade, the problem of keeping otherwise navigable waterways open through as long a season as possible becomes of interest to a large public.

Dr. Barnes who is an authority upon the formation of ice in waterways, and who has been intimately connected with the subject with special reference to conditions on the St. Lawrence, is particularly fitted to deal with the problem.

The speaker will speak with especial regard to the work that is being done towards maintaining inland winter navigation and all interested in the subject are cordially invited to attend the meeting.

He has mastered the art of lip reading and can understand most of what his instructors say. It is difficult for him to understand what lecturers are saying, and notes in his one lecture course are copied for him.

Farwell does a great deal of reading and is interested particularly in history and historical fiction. He has read the works of J. L. Motley, famous for his history of Holland and the Dutch Republic during the Spanish wars, but according to him, this writer is out of style today.

Med. '27 went into the lead at the outset and were never in danger at any time of being headed.

A rally by '28 in the third inning netted them four runs but Dreger tearded down and held them in check for the remainder of the game.

Dreger, Smith, and Grossman starred for the winners, while Brodie, Martin and Macdonald showed up well for '27.

ENGINEERING DEPT. EMPL YEE STRICKEN

Past and present students in Engineering will learn with regret that Mr. James Ralph, assistant in the department of Mechanical Engineering, was taken ill on November fifth and with paralysis.

Entering the employ of the university as a fireman in 1892, "Jim" Ralph was successively promoted to positions of trust ultimately reaching that of keeper of the stores in the machine shop tool room, which he filled to the entire satisfaction of his superiors, and in which capacity he endeared himself to his colleagues and the many students with whom he came in contact.

ENGINEERING IS DISCUSSED BY STUDENTS

Address At Engineering Institute Last Night

MR. FRASER KEITH

Suggests Change in Course. Not Optimistic

It was a subject of utmost interest to McGill students, science men in particular, that held the interest of a meeting of the Montreal Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada last evening. The subject was "The Young Man in Engineering."

Mr. Fraser Keith, the speaker, is a man who has travelled over Canada for several years in the interests of the Institute of Engineering.

He divided the subject into three parts: the hopes of the young man about to enter an engineering course, the attitude of the older engineers to the younger men in the profession, and the attitude of the younger men to the engineering profession.

On the first part Mr. Keith's words were not very optimistic. His advice to young men about to take this step is, "Don't do it." Every year the Engineering schools of Canada turn out many more graduates than the industry can absorb. It would be better to change the form of Engineering courses making a course more general in the first four years and more concentrated on engineering in two extra years and the greatest emphasis was laid on the point of learning to speak in public and as well stress was laid on more instruction in the art of writing.

On the attitude of the older engineers to the younger, Mr. Keith criticized the older men for not taking a great enough interest in the coming engineers and one thing he regarded as well nigh an outrage was the low pay that the new men in the profession receive.

Turning again to the interest of the students in particular some very interesting ideas were put forth on the attitude of the young engineer to the profession that he is entering. Mr. Keith's advice to the younger engineer was first, to remember that theirs was a great profession and second that they owed a great debt to the engineers who have gone before.

Perhaps the most interesting part of the meeting to the many McGill men present was the discussion and the many points of view expressed by the engineers present. Some of these ideas are given below.

There will never be too many men studying engineering for, even though a man may not finally go into the profession, the training is one that will benefit him in any walk of life.

The profession of Engineering is not one that gives the greatest monetary remuneration, but there is to the true engineer a satisfaction in good work that is greater.

If engineers are not more highly paid, how can they be expected to enter into the social and community life that makes for the best citizens? Engineering training should be increased along the lines of speaking, writing and commerce.

Some systematic system of apprenticeship, such as that used in England would make for better Canadian engineers.

DEVELOPEMENT OF NATIONAL SONGS

Traced by Dr. Perrin at Music Undergrad.

A meeting of the Faculty of Music Undergraduate Society was held Wednesday evening in the Conservatorium Hall. Dr. Perrin gave a splendid address on "Facts and Fallacies of National Songs," in which he traced with illustrations at the piano the development of some familiar national tunes from the original to their present settings. These included "God Save the King," "O Canada," "Yankee Doodle," and "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The speaker emphasized the effect upon melodies of the change in the scale from the pentatonic to the present diatonic form.

Miss Lynne Elton, ably accompanied by Miss Olive Hubbard, added greatly to the pleasure of the evening by her vocal solo.

WHY THE HOUSING PROBLEM?

When there are so many drifting loose about the streets.

Princeton domiciles have a weakness for travel. Who wouldn't after spending a summer in Princeton?

We might recommend, however, that they do it on the back streets. Our main drag should be the exclusive reserve of Men's Shop signs and the local luminaries who hold up the Post Office. And it's always exhilarating for those of us who live in the remote parts of town to sit out on the front porch and watch the houses whiz by.

TWO PAPERS ON IMPERIAL CONFERENCE

Speakers From McGill and U. of M.

MANY PRESENT

Lively Discussion on Subject Followed

"The recent Imperial Conference in the Light of Canada" was the subject of two papers read before the Students' Political Group at the Maison des Etudiants of the University in Montreal yesterday evening. G. W. Levy of McGill and E. Brossard of the University of Montreal both addressed the gathering in English. The discussion which followed was carried on in both French and English, practically all present participating.

In the absence of a representative of the professoriate, M. Casgrain of the University of Montreal introduced the speakers for the evening. Levy, who spoke first, emphasized the fact that nothing of any importance had been accomplished at the recent London conference. The right of the Dominions to sign separate treaties, when the contents affected only the Dominion concerned and not the Empire as a whole, had been granted, but a close examination proved this to have existed before the conference. The conference also decided that the co-operation of the United States was necessary for the settlement of the European trouble. It had also been decided to concede the United States' request for a twelve mile limit to combat the illegal liquor traffic at present being carried on.

Status of Hindus.

One important thing that had been discussed was the status of the Hindu in the different parts of the Empire. At the present time they have no rights of franchise whatsoever. Inasmuch as there are only about one thousand scattered about the Dominions, chiefly in Canada and Australia, the speaker could not see why the right to vote should not be granted to them. Their vote would not be powerful enough to alter any existing state of affairs. Another important question, that of shipping and the present high duties on it in the St. Lawrence was placed in the hands of the Shipping Committee.

On the matter of Imperial Preference, wheat received special attention. It was suggested that all wheat supplies should be bought in the Empire, and not purchased from other nations until the supply from the Dominions had been exhausted. This proposal was rejected. Canada has received considerable criticism from Englishmen, who stated that Canadians are constantly inviting American capital in preference to British. The Dominion Premier has expressed himself satisfied with the conference though nothing of any value seems to have been accomplished by it.

E. Brossard, of the University of Montreal, opened by stating that since many of those present were unacquainted with the French language, he would read his paper in English. He pointed out that throughout the proceedings, the Canadians had held themselves particularly aloof, and had waited for what was offered to them and had not asked for anything.

Great Secrecy.

Brossard explained that it was very difficult to judge the conference on account of the fact that the sessions were for the most part held in secret. He suggested that in the matter of immigration the Dominions advertise for immigrants, as most of them at the present time find their way to the United States. The speaker also brought out the fact that the independence of Canada is daily becoming more evident. He wanted to know how Canada could expect support from Britain when the Mother Country had no hand in the signing of the treaty in question.

Notwithstanding the great secrecy with which the discussions on Imperial Defence had been held, it is known that the different Dominions each have different opinions on the subject.

The Premier has stated that if England should go to war, Canada might not enter, but the speaker was sure that if the integrity of the Empire was at stake, Canada would not hesitate to join the struggle.

A discussion on the subject followed.

PSYCHOLOGY OPPOSED TO PHILOSOPHY

Philosophy the Background of All Sciences

KEEN DISCUSSION

Drs. Caldwell, Hickson, Tait, and Mr. de Silva Addressed Gatherings

The Relation of Psychology to Philosophy was the subject of a joint meeting of the Psychological and the Philosophical Societies last night in Strathcona Hall. Papers on the subject were given by Mr. H. F. Hall and Mr. T. A. Taylor.

The chair was occupied by Mr. Woodhouse and Mr. Klineberg jointly as the presidents of the two Societies. Mr. Woodhouse after a few remarks called on Mr. Klineberg to introduce the subject. Mr. Klineberg pointed out that the Psychological Society is an offshoot from the Philosophical Societies so therefore it was very proper that the relationship of the two should be discussed. He then called on Mr. Hall who upheld the point of view of the psychologists.

Mr. Hall pointed out the value of looking at science with the philosophical point of view. Philosophy is the background out of which the sciences have grown. It was not until the sciences lost this background that they have become true sciences. This is true of mathematics, astronomy, chemistry, physics and the other sciences. He pointed out that the same holds true of psychology as the other sciences have found their places as pure sciences away from this philosophical background so too has psychology. "Psychology is a science because it deals with realities. As long as gas such realities as sensation, emotion, instinct have a basis for psychology, a science. Metaphysics presupposes psychology along with other experimental sciences."

It is a science because it deals with the study of mind by scientific methods. Psychology does not deal with what ought to be but with what is.

Mr. Hall quoted Höffding as saying that psychology is not philosophy and classed it with the other true sciences in its relation to philosophy.

Coming the point of view of the philosopher, Mr. Taylor agreed with Mr. Hall that psychology is a science but it stands closer to philosophy than for example the sciences of physics or dentistry which however stand on an equal footing, methodologically and psychology is the science of that which feels, thinks, or wills but it is directly concerned with the feeling of thinking and willing itself and is not called upon to say what mind is any more than physics is required to say what matter is. We must remember that a subjective view of psychology is just as one-sided as an objective one. The two must be synthesized in order to reach reality.

Philosophy as logic, as the theory of knowledge, as Ethics, and as Aesthetics is in each case dependent to a very great extent on Psychology which is by means of this experimental method supplies the factual basis on which it may build. Psychology and Philosophy overlap particularly in the problems of sense perception and consciousness.

Both speakers are to be congratulated on the manner in which they handled their subjects. Both showed an intense knowledge of their subject which was much appreciated by the audience as was evinced by the interesting discussion which followed.

Such well-known figures as Dr. Caldwell, Dr. Hickson, Dr. Tait and Mr. de Silva from among the faculty as well as Mr. Clarke an ex-president of the philosophical society, Mr. Klineberg, Mr. Woodhouse and many others, gave their opinions and everyone present looked on this first joint meeting of the sister societies as Dr. Caldwell well said ("one of the most successful meetings of this character that he had ever attended at McGill.")

Pecker (in Stanley House). "What kind of steak have you?"
Waitress: "Steak a la carte."

Pecker: "Good, wheel it in."
Porky: "I've had a hard time with water on the knee."
Gonsie: "Why not wear pumps?"

THE THREE NUTS

One of the Three Nuts had a most interesting experience yesterday, when he met a French-Canadian student, who is a Freshman at one of the French colleges, Alcide Leblanc, from St. Polycarpe Junction, and had a very entertaining story to tell, although it was in the broken English for which the "Nut" is famous. He had hardly recovered from the excitement of seeing his first rugby game; he was present at the stadium when McGill finished the season by downing M. A. A. A. As it was his—but Alcide must tell the rest himself.

"Ah, yes, Monsieur, I have seen de game of Bezbali; I was here at St. Polycarpe Junction wen de team was beat up on Ste. Scholastique, tree to two, in de 'nut' lining wit' Alphonse Trudel at de bat, an' two out an' tree on base—". Yes, yes, Alcide, said the Nut, I remember that famous incident, and you can finish de story—another time, but please tell me 'about tair too-bau game to-day."

"Alright Monsieur," he began again, "I was jus' tell you dat I have seen de game of bezbali, an' I have seen de game of bezbali, but nevaire till de week before las' did I see de football—what you call beem, de rogbee, n'est ce pas? I go out to de game alone, 'bout half past two o'clock, vous savez, to de big place, dey call de Mahillit Stadyum. I go to de box wit' hole in de side, an' heers who's speak 'feety-five cent.' I geev beem feety-cent, and say 'Wat for you wan' de five-for buy y'urself' gomme.' An den he say 'Five cent forde tax'. Dat mak' me mad, 'Mon Dieu, you tink I was de foe? Mais nos, I would radder sit on a seat! But I geev beem wan neckel an' get my billet for de game."

(Alcide's story will be concluded in tomorrow's issue.)

'Tis Mutual

She (Aboard the Bilbo after first dance): "Thank goodness, this day is over! I hope I never live through another like it! And that simple looking fellow that thinks he can dance! My feet are aching where he trod on them! I'll certainly tell Isabel what I think of her for telling me was a charming fellow! No wonder she was so anxious for me to spend the week-end at Ole Miss! He must wear spurs in his shoes to feel at home! And to think I had to call off that date with C. A. Legg."

He (Preparing for slumber): "Stuck again! Great Caesar! How does her mother have the heart to expose her! That fellow B. Damn! Telling me she shakes a wicked foot! She may have shaken a wicked churn dasher before she came up here. No wonder the fellows let me have her to myself; they are so good to me! Wait till one of them lands a stick! And to think my whole week-end was spoiled when I could have had Janie down, out had to dance instead with that poor thing while B. Damn and Janie had the time of their lives!"

ANTI-VIVISECTION LEAGUE MEETING

Morality of Vivisection Discussed Last Night

The morality of vivisection in experimental science was discussed last night under the auspices of the Anti-Vivisection League of Canada at Victoria Hall, Westmount. It is alleged that a number of medical students who made up probably more than half of the not very large audience were somewhat disappointed because of the lack of any exciting discussion following the main speaker of the evening, the President of the Anti-Vivisection League of America from Philadelphia.

The speaker cited numerous examples of famous men who had written or spoken in favour of kindness to animals. Then his argument touched on the changing fashions in the sciences and also in other aspects of life. At the present time the fashion in medicine favours humane sera and gland transplanting.

Next the great men of medicine were treated with no very friendly hand. Galen and Vesaling were described as brutal experimenters; John Hunter, As cruel and calloused while Magendie and Bruchesi and others fared as badly. The speaker cited figures from Great Britain about the numbers of experiments with and without anaesthesia. And emphasized the danger of a man becoming a slave to science and this danger is especially grave for physiologists. Gruesome sounding reports of experiments done in California were read for the edification of the audience.

In closing the speaker made a plea for mutual aid and co-operation which he said was greater than natural selection.

After the main speech of the evening a member of the audience asked if discussion of the subject would be allowed. However the chairman did not favour it and the speaker of the evening said he did not wish to have the particular note he had tried to strike changed by any discussion which might take place.

Y'see those marks will make the faces longer.

The Editor,

McGill Daily.

Dear Sir,—In your report of the Arts '24-'25 debate, in to-day's issue, I was surprised to find the following statement: "People who follow politics are too dirty for an honest man, and are moral cowards, whether they admit it or not." As far as these words have any meaning at all, that meaning is the direct opposite of what I said. The "moral cowards" to whom I referred are precisely those people who say that "politics is a dirty game, unfit for decent people." This is an attitude I detest, and which I have denounced in the strongest terms. To see myself, or rather my new-found double, "Forsey," appearing in print as an ardent supporter of such a view, seems indeed the irony of fate.

Thanking you for your space,

I am,

Sincerely yours,

Eugene Forsey,

Arts '25.
